Assignment Name: Case #4

The objective of this case study is to consider the factors Influencing bread pricing strategies. There have been real efforts to check and analyze information both online and in-store to get the most accurate findings and provide them in this academic case study.

In the competitive food industry, setting the right price is an inevitable part of a company's success. This case study investigates the pricing strategies considered by three distinct bread brands: Country Harvest 14 Grains Sliced Bread, Dempster's® Whole Grains Ancient Grains Bread with Quinoa, and Silver Hills Sprouted Grain Little Big Bread. We gain valuable insights into the complex factors influencing product pricing by analyzing their unique features, target markets, and pricing techniques.

1. Country Harvest 14 Grain:

Country Harvest 14 Grains Sliced Bread has a variety of whole grains, natural ingredients, and high ingredients. The micronutrient content shows various B vitamins, iron, calcium, potassium, and other essential minerals. The bread is low in cholesterol and trans fats and provides a substantial amount of manganese. It is sold at $4.35 at Real Canadian Superstore and $3.97 at Walmart. With 4.6 out of 5 Walmart reviews, Country Harvest is strategically priced to attract budget-conscious shoppers while caring about health and quality. This means their target market is larger compared to the competitors. In addition, based on one of the writer's in-person observations at Shoppers Drug Mart, they are sold at $4.99. According to this, It must have used a value-based pricing strategy.

2. Dempster's® Whole Grains Ancient Grains Bread with Quinoa:

A profile with 190 calories, 3g of fat (including 0.5g saturated fat and no trans fat), 34g of carbohydrates (with 4g of fiber and 3g of sugars), and 8g of protein. It is low in cholesterol, containing 0mg, and moderately sodium-rich at 280mg (12% DV). The food provides notable amounts of essential minerals, including potassium, calcium, iron, and zinc, while offering a range of vitamins such as thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, and folate. It is priced at $2.87, $5.45, and $4.99 at Walmart, Your Independent Grocer, and Safeway respectively. Dempster's Whole Grains targets niche markets willing to pay more for unique features, organic certification, and health benefits. As a result, their pricing strategy is premium.

3. Silver Hills Sprouted Grain Little Big Bread:

Silver Hills Sprouted Grain Little Big Bread with 190 calories, 3g of fat (including 0.5g saturated fat and no trans fat), 34g of carbohydrates (with 4g of fiber and 3g of sugars), and 8g of protein. The Silver Hills Sprouted Grain provides notable amounts of essential minerals, including potassium, calcium, iron, and zinc, while offering a range of vitamins such as thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, and folate. It is priced at $5.44 and $6.99 at a Canadian superstore, and Costco. The most expensive bread in this category is Silver Hills Sprouted Grain Little Big Bread, an easily digestible choice and rich nutrition, the same as Dempster's, and targets those who want special features. For this, the price skimming strategy is the most suitable consideration.

In conclusion, there are three factors to take into consideration, starting from production costs that vary in these three items based on their various ingredients. The second is the perceived value as already studied in class, and the third is the competitor's price.
